Their retreat created scenic peaks, fjord-like bays, and wide U-shaped valleys ideally suited for abundant land and marine life to thrive. These natural resources attracted the Alutiiq, Kodiak’s first inhabitants, who practiced their subsistence lifestyle here as far back as the fourth millennium B.C. Russian fur trappers came to Kodiak in pursuit of sea otter pelts in the 18th century. Following the United States’ purchase of Alaska a century later, Kodiak’s economy shifted to whaling and salmon fishing, and today, its salmon- and cod-rich waters make it one of the busiest fishing ports in the country.

Explore the island’s historic landmarks highlighting Native American and Russian legacies and experience a wildness that is matched in few other places on Earth. (b,l,d)

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21
DUTCH HARBOR
Dutch Harbor has a diverse history where culture and commerce have coexisted since the mid-1700s. Located at the confluence of the North Pacific and the Bering Sea, it is the only natural deepwater port in the Aleutian Islands and leads our nation in both volume and value of seafood caught with more than 800 million pounds processed annually for export. Here, the Museum of the Aleutians contains native artifacts from these islands, which indigenous Aleut people have continuously inhabited for close to 9000 years, while military ruins testify to the area’s strategic value during World War II. TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22 TO FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 25
TRANS PACIFIC CROSSING
Cruising between port calls in Dutch Harbor and the Kamchatka Peninsula, be on deck to look for marine wildlife such as orca and humpback whales, harbor seals, sea otters, and one of the most dense populations of sea birds on Earth. Enjoy the ship’s six-star amenities—onboard lectures, live entertainment, Relais & Châteaux dining, bridge tournaments, complimentary fitness classes, a casino, onboard spa treatments, and stargazing.

Or, simply wrap up in a blanket and relax on deck with a complimentary beverage of your choice while contemplating a panoramic view of the Pacific horizon. (b,l,r,d)

PETRIPAVLOVSK-KAMCHATKA, RUSSIA
Kamchatka, “the land of fire and ice,” is a designated UNESCO World Heritage site. The region played a strategic role in the defense of Russian territory and was closed off to the world for decades until after the collapse of the Soviet Union in 1991, resulting in the preservation of its vast, unique, and pristine wilderness, which is dotted with more than 300 volcanoes and inhabited by the world’s largest brown bear population; almost one third of the planet’s Pacific salmon population; and the powerful Steller’s sea eagle, native only to this part of the globe. Petropavlovsk, at the edge of Avacha Bay, is one of Russia’s oldest towns in the Far East and is one of the world’s most beautiful settings surrounded by wilderness sanctuaries.
and snowcapped mountains. In 1740, the explorer Vitus Bering reached Avacha Bay and from here embarked on his voyage, which led to the discovery of the Aleutian Islands. (b,l,d)

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 27 TO MONDAY SEPTEMBER 28 CRUISING THE PACIFIC OCEAN Relax onboard and enjoy the ship’s six-star accommodations while cruising the edges of the Sea of Okhotsk en route to Japan. (28,2,2d)

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 29 KUSHIRO, JAPAN The beautiful coastal port of Kushiro, located in the southeastern part of Hokkaido and facing the Pacific Ocean, is known as “the town of mist” and has been a base for deep-sea fishing for over a century. The thriving Washo fish market sells fresh seafood such as saury, hairy crab, salmon, shishamo (a kind of smelt), and scallops. Nearby, the largest wetland in Japan, Kushiro Marshland, is renowned for its unique ecosystem, which can be observed directly from a wooden walkway. It is home to about 600 plant species and offers habitats for migratory birds and the enormous Japanese crane, a traditional symbol of longevity and good fortune. (b,l,d)

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30 HAKODATE Located on the southern shores of the largely untamed isle of Hokkaido, Hakodate opened as an international port in 1859. The city retains the ambience of a bygone era with old-fashioned streetcars running through the historic Motomachi district, which is laden with turn-of-the-century American and European architecture. The city’s highlights include a Russian Orthodox church built in the Byzantine style; an antebellum mansion which houses Hakodate’s public hall; and Asa Ichi, a fish and vegetable market brimming with local Japanese color.
