WHAT TO EXPECT / PHYSICAL HEALTH: All participants must be in generally good health. Any condition that may require assistance or special medical attention must be reported at the time of your reservation. All programs require physical independence and mobility. Any physical or mental condition that may require special medical attention or physical assistance must be reported in writing when you make your reservation. Travelers must be able to embark or disembark motor coaches alone or with minimal assistance from your traveling companion, and climb stairs and step over raised thresholds without assistance. Travelers requiring assistance must travel with a companion who will be responsible for handling equipment.

This is a relatively strenuous program, covering rugged terrain, with considerable walking on all excursions and a number of rigorous travel days with early departures and full days. Drives will range from short to full-day drives (one to seven hours, with many stops along the way to sightsee and stretch your legs.)

Daily activities can involve one to three miles of walking, often in the full sun, and walking tours can last as long as three hours, including periodic stops. Some walking takes place over uneven terrain or cobblestone or dirt paths, and at some locations, stairs without handrails and high thresholds. The optional excursion to Taktsang Monastery in Bhutan is a rigorous hike. Some buildings will not have elevators, so participants should be able to comfortably climb stairs without assistance. There will be several occasions when travelers will have to remove shoes to enter temples and other sites.

Much of the itinerary takes place at high altitude: Paro is at 7,200 feet; Thimphu is at 7,660 feet; Taktsang Monastery is at 10,240 feet, and Pele La Pass is 11,000 feet. At these locations, many participants will experience symptoms of altitude sickness, including headache, fatigue, and insomnia. In addition, higher altitudes can exacerbate health issues travelers already have.

Restrooms outside the hotels and restaurants may be rustic (including some squat toilets) and may not supply toilet paper. “Bush stops” will be made during the longer bus rides, as public toilets are not available in remote areas.

Travelers do not have to participate in all the scheduled activities, except when traveling to the next destination.

Participants with medical issues and/or dietary restrictions must make them known to us well before departure, and impairments regarding mobility must be disclosed prior to booking. If you have any questions about the level of activity of this program or your ability to participate, please call Harvard Alumni Travels at 800-422-1636.

PREPARING FOR YOUR JOURNEY: You will be provided with comprehensive pre-departure travel information, including specific suggestions for packing, a recommended reading list and amenities pack.

This insurance is secondary to any insurance the traveler may already have. You will receive detailed information on this coverage approximately 30 days prior to your departure. Should you also purchase the Ripcord Rescue Travel Insurance plan offered to you at confirmation, it will provide you with benefits which are additional to those stated above.
